Avkin was created by a clinical nurse specialist to improve quality and safety in healthcare. The value of simulation for improving patient safety is well-established, but simulation in an unfamiliar center is more expensive and not nearly as valuable as reinforcing best practice standards and just-in-time education right on the unit where clinicians and interprofessional teams provide care to the patients. As leaders in insitu hybrid simulation, Avkin's authenticity quickly identifies gaps in competence and compassionate connected-care. Our products are modular, wearable simulators for maximum realism. Each product can be worn by simulated participants, hospital volunteers, or even fellow nurses. They are equipped with sensors that vibrate to cue the "patient" in real time. Avkin's products are compact and come with their own carrying case for easy transport and storage. Maximize both patient quality and safety with Avkin's product line.
